

Contents

List of Figures	page ix
1 Introduction	1
2 Ludwig Erhard, Who Took Credit for Edward A. Tenenbaum's Success	11
2.1 Erhard's Vita in Short	23
2.2 Was Erhard a Two-Time Political Turncoat?	29
2.3 How Candid Was Erhard's Treatment of Historical Truths?	70
2.4 Did Erhard Have His Act Together or Was He Just a Talented Self-Promoter?	78
3 Edward A. Tenenbaum's Family Roots, Adolescence, and Military Experience until 1946	94
3.1 Family Roots and Adolescence until BA Graduation at Yale in June 1942	94
3.2 In OSS and Military Service 1942–1946	140
3.2.1 In the United States	140
3.2.2 In Western Europe	190
3.2.3 In Wartime Germany	196
3.2.4 In Postwar Germany	299
4 In Action for OMGUS and Currency Reform in Germany 1946–1948	310
4.1 In the Run-up to C-Day: General Political Setting	310
4.1.1 International Political Setting	310
4.1.2 Two Specific Questions	322
4.2 Planning and Preparing for C-Day: Tenenbaum's Role	355

viii CONTENTS

4.3	Cage, Concentration Camp, Reorientation Camp, and Conclave of Rothwesten	439
4.4	Currency Reform, Consequences, and Assessments	474
4.4.1	Currency Reform	474
4.4.2	Consequences	488
4.4.3	Assessments	523
5	From OMGUS to Civil Service in Washington, DC and for Europe 1948–1953	547
5.1	ECA, MSA, and IMF in Washington, DC 1948–1952	547
5.1.1	ECA from October 1948 to July 1950	553
5.1.2	IMF from July 1950 to May 1951	555
5.1.3	ECA/MSA from May 1951 to April 1952 in Washington, DC	556
5.2	For MSA in Athens 1952–1953: Greek Currency Reform	562
6	Life and Fate as a Businessman and Family Man 1953–1975 and Beyond	594
6.1	Businessman	594
6.2	Family Man and Beyond	609
7	Conclusion	626
	Notes	631
	Acknowledgments	752
	List of Abbreviations	756
	Index	764